

IMAGINE :

Water springs start flowing everywhere again.

Rivers again follow their natural course. Human beings have learned to cooperate with water. They have brought the big water cycle into order. There are no weather catastrophes anymore no destructive floods, no permanent droughts or forest fires.

Vegetation has also returned to dry regions; shady, cool forests have spread. Fertile gardens and bio-diverse landscapes are set up around residential areas. Nobody has to flee to other countries anymore to survive. All beings can supply themselves with fresh drinking water and healthy food everywhere. Thoughts of scarcity have completely vanished. Human beings have begun to use inexhaustible energy sources. They have understood that they live in everlasting abundance if they follow the laws of nature and not the laws of capital.
