

IMAGINE :

Imagine people are living everywhere in communities again.

They live in nourishing biotopes, abundant with water springs, gardens and autonomous energy supply. They no longer build fences, because their lives are based on complete trust. Among them there is neither lying nor deceit, neither fear nor violence. Judge Not became their absolute commandment. They criticize each other, but they have understood that nobody has the right to condemn anyone. The principle of non-violence also applies to animals. In their coexistence they follow three ethical guidelines of truth, mutual support and responsible participation in the whole. Among the genders, there is complete solidarity, truth and sexuality free of fear. Many live in partnerships and families, which are embedded in the community. They consciously work for ending war between the genders, for the rediscovery of love and for a protected growth of children.

These communities are the cornerstones for a new civilization on Earth.
